Tuesday, November 10, 2026

The developers of AaronTools (Tony Schaefer, Victoria Ingman, Laura Andreola, Roman Edwards, and Steven Wheeler) have agreed to change the license from GPL-3.0 to LGPL-3.0 (see attached emails).

v1.1.1-GPL will be the final version released under the GPL-3.0 license.

Starting with v1.2, AaronTools will be licensed under LGPL-3.0.

Subject: Re: AaronTools License change
From: Steven Wheeler <swheele2@uga.edu>
Date: 11/10/2026, 7:49 AM
To: Steven Wheeler <swheele2@uga.edu>

I agree to change the AaronTools license to LGPL-3.0.

Steven Wheeler

On 11/2/2026 2:42 PM, Steven Wheeler wrote:

> Anyone? If no one has any opinions then I propose that we switch AaronTools to LGPL-3.0.
>
> If you agree, please respond with "I agree to change the AaronTools license to LGPL-3.0."
>
> We'll then save those emails, move the current version to a separate "GPL" branch, and establish an LGPL branch that we'll use moving forward (I'll let Tony do this since I will almost certainly screw it up).
>
> Steven
>
> On 10/29/2026 10:36 AM, Steven Wheeler wrote:
>
> > Dear AaronTools contributors,
> >
> > We've had various informal discussions about changing the AaronTools license over the last couple of years but never pulled the trigger.
> >
> > I would like us to come to a consensus and change the license from GPL-3.0 to LGPL-3.0, BSD3, or MIT.
> >
> > Please let me know your thoughts. I'd also be happy to set up a Zoom meeting to discuss (and just catch up).
> >
> > Steven

Subject: Re: AaronTools License change
From: Laura Andreola <landreola4@gmail.com>
Date: 11/2/2026, 3:23 PM
To: Steven Wheeler <swheele2@uga.edu>

[EXTERNAL SENDER - PROCEED CAUTIOUSLY]

Sorry I was sick over the weekend and am just catching up.
I'm open to meeting about it if others would prefer, but I think that LGLP-3.0 seems good.
For formal purposes:
I agree to change the AaronTools license to LGPL-3.0.

Thanks,
Laura

On Mon, Nov 2, 2026 at 2:42 PM Steven Wheeler <swheele2@uga.edu> wrote:

> Anyone? If no one has any opinions then I propose that we switch
> AaronTools to LGPL-3.0.
>
> If you agree, please respond with "I agree to change the AaronTools > license to LGPL-3.0."
>
> We'll then save those emails, move the current version to a separate
> "GPL" branch, and establish an LGPL branch that we'll use moving forward
> (I'll let Tony do this since I will almost certainly screw it up).
>
> Steven
>
> On 10/29/2026 10:36 AM, Steven Wheeler wrote:
> > Dear AaronTools contributors,
> >
> > We've had various informal discussions about changing the AaronTools > > license over the last couple of years but never pulled the trigger.
> >
> > I would like us to come to a consensus and change the license from
> > GPL-3.0 to LGPL-3.0, BSD3, or MIT.
> >
> > Please let me know your thoughts. I'd also be happy to set up a Zoom > > meeting to discuss (and just catch up).
> >
> > Steven
> >
> >

Subject: Re: AaronTools License change
From: Tony Schaefer <tony.schaefer.chem@gmail.com>
Date: 11/2/2026, 5:17 PM
To: Steven Wheeler <swheele2@uga.edu>

[EXTERNAL SENDER - PROCEED CAUTIOUSLY]

"I agree to change the AaronTools license to LGPL-3.0."

On Mon, Nov 2, 2026 at 12:42 PM Steven Wheeler <swheele2@uga.edu> wrote:

> Anyone? If no one has any opinions then I propose that we switch
> AaronTools to LGPL-3.0.
>
> If you agree, please respond with "I agree to change the AaronTools
> license to LGPL-3.0."
>
> We'll then save those emails, move the current version to a separate
> "GPL" branch, and establish an LGPL branch that we'll use moving forward
> (I'll let Tony do this since I will almost certainly screw it up).
>
> Steven
>
> On 10/29/2026 10:36 AM, Steven Wheeler wrote:
> > Dear AaronTools contributors,
> >
> > We've had various informal discussions about changing the AaronTools > > license over the last couple of years but never pulled the trigger.
> >
> > I would like us to come to a consensus and change the license from
> > GPL-3.0 to LGPL-3.0, BSD3, or MIT.
> >
> > Please let me know your thoughts. I'd also be happy to set up a Zoom > > meeting to discuss (and just catch up).
> >
> > Steven
> >
> >

Subject: Re: AaronTools License change
From: Roman Edwards <Roman.Edwards@uga.edu>
Date: 11/6/2026, 11:09 AM
To: STEVEN EDGE WHEELER <swheele2@uga.edu>

Hey! Sorry for not responding, I wanted to look at the different licenses so I could have an informed opinion but haven't been able to find the time. I at least took a look at the LGPL license and didn't see any problems so:

I agree to change the AaronTools license to LGPL-3.0.

Roman

From: STEVEN EDGE WHEELER <swheele2@uga.edu>
Sent: Friday, November 6, 2026 10:33 AM
To: Roman Edwards <Roman.Edwards@uga.edu>
Subject: Re: AaronTools License change

On 11/2/2026 2:42 PM, Steven Wheeler wrote:
> Anyone? If no one has any opinions then I propose that we switch
> AaronTools to LGPL-3.0.
>
> If you agree, please respond with "I agree to change the AaronTools
> license to LGPL-3.0."
>
> We'll then save those emails, move the current version to a separate
> "GPL" branch, and establish an LGPL branch that we'll use moving > forward (I'll let Tony do this since I will almost certainly screw it > up).
>
> Steven
>
> On 10/29/2026 10:36 AM, Steven Wheeler wrote:
>> Dear AaronTools contributors,
>>
>> We've had various informal discussions about changing the AaronTools >> license over the last couple of years but never pulled the trigger.
>>
>> I would like us to come to a consensus and change the license from
>> GPL-3.0 to LGPL-3.0, BSD3, or MIT.
>>
>> Please let me know your thoughts. I'd also be happy to set up a Zoom >> meeting to discuss (and just catch up).
>>
>> Steven
>>
>>

Subject: Re: AaronTools License change
From: Victoria Ingman <blackbirdfly29@me.com>
Date: 11/9/2026, 2:41 PM
To: Steven Wheeler <swheele2@uga.edu>

[EXTERNAL SENDER - PROCEED CAUTIOUSLY]

Yes, I agree to change the AaronTools license to LGPL-3.0

On November 9, 2026 1:35:47 PM CST, Steven Wheeler <swheele2@uga.edu> wrote:

> Victoria - Do you approve of changing AaronTools license from GPL to LGPL-3.0?
>
> On 11/2/2026 2:42 PM, Steven Wheeler wrote:
>
> > Anyone? If no one has any opinions then I propose that we switch AaronTools to LGPL-3.0.
> >
> > If you agree, please respond with "I agree to change the AaronTools license to LGPL-3.0."
> >
> > We'll then save those emails, move the current version to a separate "GPL" branch, and establish an LGPL branch that we'll use moving forward (I'll let Tony do this since I will almost certainly screw it up).
> >
> > Steven
> >
> > On 10/29/2026 10:36 AM, Steven Wheeler wrote:
> >
> > > Dear AaronTools contributors,
> > >
> > > We've had various informal discussions about changing the AaronTools license over the last couple of years but never pulled the trigger.
> > >
> > > I would like us to come to a consensus and change the license from GPL-3.0 to LGPL-3.0, BSD3, or MIT.
> > >
> > > Please let me know your thoughts. I'd also be happy to set up a Zoom meeting to discuss (and just catch up).
> > >
> > > Steven